Dear Larry:

It is very difficult to express in words the appreciation which I feel for you, as well as the warm regard I have for our personal friendship.

You did a terrific job under some of the most difficult circumstances I have ever been in, and your willingness to tackle any job, and your constant cooperation at every level were greatly appreciated.

I wish you well in your new endeavor. I thank you, both as your employer, and as your friend. You always have a job with me any time.

With personal regards,
